Panther Eleven Will Play St. Michael's at Burlington This Saturday Afternoon

VOL. XXXI MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE, MIDDLEBURY, VT., NOVEMBER 1, 1933 No. 6

Panthers Triumph Over St. Anselm's In Close Game 7-0

Middlebury Gridsters Turn Tide of Play Early In Third Quarter

WINNING SCORE IS MADE BY WILLIAMS

Opponents Threaten During First Half by Strong Passing Attack

In a close, hard-fought battle that was anybody's game until the final whistle, Middlebury shaded St. Anselm's by 7-0 at Porter field Saturday afternoon. Despite a frigid wind that had the spectators in a semi-frozen state, the contest was well played save for a few pardonable fumbles.

The Panthers found the team from Manchester, N. H., a tough combination to overcome. Before the opening of the current season the visitors had been regarded as a breather in the schedule, due to the fact that they are newcomers in the ranks of intercollegiate football. The team's good showing in their early games gave warning, however, that they would be worthy foes for the Blue and White's fighting eleven, and their fine performance Saturday was all that their record promised.

The first half of the game was decidedly St. Anselm's. The Manchester aggregation displayed a well-conceived and well-executed attack that seemed as though it would surely score. Quarterback Lee displayed as capable an ability at passing as the Panthers have encountered this year, and his short, accurate hair-line flips were almost unstoppable. Picking his receivers with splendid judgment, Lee used his fine arm to advantage, completing six passes out of eight in the first half. Once in the first quarter the visitors

Professor Cady to Read From "Huckleberry Finn"

Prof. Frank W. Cady will give the second of a series of library readings at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, November 3, in the Abernethy wing of the library.

He will read from Mark Twain's immortal "Huckleberry Finn". Books by Twain and other outstanding American humorists will be on exhibition at that time.

Dr. Charles Baker Wright, professor emeritus of rhetoric and English literature, gave the first in the series of readings October 23 when he spoke "On Collecting a Library".

The next reading will be given on November 24 by Prof. William S. Burrage, who will read "Androcles and the Lion" by George Bernard Shaw.

These readings are under the direction of Miss Viola C. White, curator of the Abernethy collection of American literature. Students and faculty are cordially invited to attend.

Women's Debating Team Meets Bates

Middlebury Takes Negative Side in Question of Radio Operation by Government

The women's debating team met representatives of Bates college in a non-decision contest at Lewiston, Me., Monday. This was their first debate this season.

Middlebury upheld the negative side of the question: resolved, that the United States should adopt the British system of radio operation and control.

Each team was allowed three ten minute constructive speeches and three five minute rebuttals. The Middlebury speakers in their order of appearance were Katharine L. Kelley '36, Lovina A. Foote '34, and E. Dorothy Canfield '35.

The affirmative advocated governmental control of radio to replace the system of private profit used in the United States. The evils of the American system were given as follows: first, education is crowded off the air, secondly, there is overcommercialization through advertising, in the third place, the type of program offered appeals only to those of the lowest mentality, and lastly, the British system would be less expensive due to the elimination of advertising.

Three main points were presented by the negative. They argued that the essential features of the British system are neither practical nor desirable for the American public. Control of untruthful and deceitful advertising rather than complete removal was advocated, and as a third point they declared that the British type of program would be more expensive due to the size of the country, the number of stations, and the superior quality of program offered in the United States.

Vermont Artist to Exhibit Paintings Here This Week

Miss Hilda Belcher, well-known modern painter, will give an exhibit of her pictures in Pearsons social hall Thursday and Friday afternoons. The presentation is being sponsored by the student government association and all who are interested are invited to attend.

Miss Belcher, a native of Pittsford, Vt., has her studio in New York. She has paintings on display in various art galleries and in the Philadelphia museum of art. She has recently given exhibits in Burlington and Manchester and at an early date will show her pictures at Dartmouth college in a presentation similar to that which will be given here.

The artist will be present both afternoons, and though no regular lecture has been planned, she will discuss any of the various paintings or talk about art in general with anyone who wishes to speak with her.

Membership Drive Will Be Made For Concert Programs

Middlebury Village To Join National Community Organization

SALE OF TICKETS TO START NOVEMBER 6

Many Famous Artists Are Available for Winter Presentation

The membership drive of the community concert association at Middlebury will begin Monday, November 6 and will close Saturday, November 11. Tickets, which can be purchased only during this period, are three dollars each for students and five dollars for others.

The community concert association, which the village of Middlebury is joining this year, is nationally organized in order to make concerts possible in communities on a basis which eliminates financial risk on the part of any person or group. The concerts will be similar to those which have appeared in other years on the college entertainment course.

Only members of the association will be allowed to attend the concerts as there are to be no single admissions to any attraction. However, tickets will be transferable and out-of-town visitors may make arrangements to secure admission.

Anyone holding a membership ticket is entitled to attend not only the three concerts which will be given in Middlebury but also any program in other communities belonging to the association. Burlington, which has already adopted the plan, will open the series Saturday night, November 11 with the

Prof. Everett Skillings Will Give Talk at Liberal Club

Prof. Everett Skillings will give an informal talk on conditions in Germany at the first open meeting of the Liberal club to be held in Hepburn social hall Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Professor Skillings spent his sabbatical leave last year studying in Germany, and is well acquainted with conditions under the Hitler regime. He will give an account of the situation as he has observed it, emphasizing particularly the social results of the change in government.

This meeting will be followed by others to be held on alternate Friday evenings, it was decided at a business session of the organization last Wednesday evening. Prominent outside speakers and members of the faculty will speak, and usually the meetings will be open to all students who wish to attend. A small admission charge will be made when outside speakers are engaged.

British Aviator Will Give Lecture Here

Commodore Fellowes, Head Of Flight over Everest, To Show Movies of Trip

"The Conquest of Everest", a lecture by Air Commodore P. F. M. Fellowes, illustrated with special motion pictures, will be presented at the Middlebury town hall November 28, under the auspices of the college.

Air Commodore Fellowes was the leader of the Houston-Mt. Everest expedition which flew over the summit of the highest peak in the world last April 3. This expedition was the first to succeed in the conquest by air of a height which has withstood numerous attempts by men on foot.

Flying at altitudes as great as 33,000 feet and in temperatures lower than the Byrd expedition experienced in Anarctica, the two planes succeeded in passing over the 29,141 foot pinnacle of Mount Everest after days of waiting for favorable winds. The motion pictures taken on this and a second flight over the highest peaks of the Himalayas are said to be some of the finest and most striking pictures of mountains ever made.

Air Commodore Fellowes is one of Great Britain's leading aviators. He served in the air force for more than three years of the World war, and was shot down and captured by the Germans. Following the close of the conflict he continued active in flying services, and for five years was director of airship development. He also served as aide de camp to King George V for several years.

Tickets for this lecture will go on sale at Frost's drug store within a few days. All seats will be reserved, and the price will be 50 cents.

Russell H. White to Give Twilight Musicale Friday

Russell H. White '34 will give a trombone recital as the second in the series of twilight musicales in Mead chapel Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

These programs are sponsored by the A Tempo club, and it is expected that many students will participate in the series. The musicales will continue to be given weekly until some time in the spring.

Last week Francis B. Sprague '34 and Gordon E. Hoyt '36 played selections on the flute and cello. They were accompanied by Jean C. Wiley '35.

Included in the program were the trio numbers, "Waltz in A flat" by Brahms; and "At Dawning" by Cadman. Mr. Hoyt played "Largo" and "Sarabande" by Handel and "Romance" by Galtermann as solos while Mr Sprague gave Schubert's "Ave Maria" and Mascagni's "Intermezzo".

The concerts of this series are open to students and faculty members.

Varsity Eleven To Meet St. Michael's In Series Contest

Beckmen to Open Campaign For Conference Title At Burlington

TEAMS ARE EQUALLY MATCHED IN WEIGHT

Panthers Have Better Early Season Record With Four Victories

Middlebury opens her state series campaign Saturday afternoon at Centennial field, Burlington, when the Panther eleven meets St. Michael's in what should be the most even encounter to date, as far as comparative weight goes. Both teams will base their running attack on a fast, light backfield behind a slight, rangy line.

The Hilltoppers are smarting from shutouts in three out of four starts, winning only in the intra-state contest with Norwich. In their opener with Holy Cross, the inexperienced Winooski eleven was overwhelmed by the powerful Crusaders 50-0. St. Michael's accounted for only six yards of forward progress and one first down. Coach Bob Carr succeeded in bolstering up his defensive and attained a smoothly running outfit which took Norwich 6-0. The swinging hips of Bozek, fleet all-state halfback, eluded the Cadets in a 30 yard romp for the touchdown. An up and coming second eleven was able to drive to the Norwich 2 yard marker at the half. The 40 yard punting average of Paddy Lavin, dimunitive quarterback and triple threat man, kept the Horsemen continually in the hole. An aerial attack gaining 97 yards for St. Michael's, seven out of ten trys being completed.

Numerous fumbles marked the St. Michael's 9-0 defeat by Northeastern. Of 25 attempted forwards only 11 were

THE NOMINATING COMMITTEE

Considerable controversy has arisen over the current elections of officers for the four classes at Middlebury. The main gist of the contention seems to lie in arguments for and against the nominating system now in use for all voters in both colleges. It is our purpose to defend this arrangement by treating the significant claims of both sides.

Introduced last spring, the nominating committee system was conceived with the hopeless ideal of eliminating fraternity politics — that ancient and established tradition which makes the United Fruit Company seem childishly simple by comparison. A more hopeful aim was to clarify the problems of selecting proper candidates for proper offices through a group completely representative of the class.

The inauguration of the plan provided nominees for the office of junior week chairman, and considering the futility of the first aim of the system and the basic soundness of the second, it served with marked success. Driven home at this auspicious beginning was the primary importance of the rule requiring absolute secrecy on the part of committee members, from the close of their meeting until the time of election. The entire system collapses and must repeatedly fail if this rule is not observed.

Reckoning against human nature, in this case the gregarious impulses of man, dooms any proposal to failure. Therefore, it was believed that nominations made by a representative few and announced at the general election would tend to check the formation of mass combines based on mistaken motives. It becomes obvious at once that any fracture of the groups' agreements defeats the very end to which it was dedicated.

There will always be the bargaining urge for swapping offices between powerful campus factions at any college - - previous, that is, to millenium's dawn. And by that time interest in class elections will be negligible. In the meantime we must cope with the recognized forces involved. No matter what else may be said on the subject, the nominating committee is a representative organization - - at least as representative as can be obtained by the choice of one member from each fraternity or dormitory, and the neutral body. Dissatisfaction with the results of the committee can only reflect upon the voters who selected their delegates.

Since the system is built upon so typical a body, it is only logical to assume that its reports will include the best candidates available. Herein lies the outstanding advantage of the entire scheme, for thus is assured that no matter how an individual be ultimately elected, his original acceptance by the committee marks him as worthy to hold the office. Under the former system, embodying prearranged nominations from the floor, this was not always true.

We have sought to show that the success of the nominating committee system depends fully upon the careful deliberation of each member; upon the care with which each delegate is chosen; and upon the complete faith with which the pledge of secrecy is maintained. The CAMPUS regards the arrangement as the best possible solution to a most complex problem.

Poking About

—by Doris G. Anderson

Lake Dunmore glassware is rare and highly prized by collectors, and most of the pieces still extant are to be found among private collections in Addison and Rutland counties. Professor Voter has loaned a number of pieces, which are on exhibition in the Abernethy wing of the Library together with a firebrick from the site of the kiln found by Mr. P. E. Crane. The history of the manufacture of this glassware has been gathered bit by bit from the families whose fathers and grandfathers had been connected with the industry.

At the present time there is hardly a trace of the factory buildings which Ephraim Jones erected in 1811 on the western shore of Lake Dunmore for his glass kilns. In the earth around a ruined bowling alley, now standing on the site, innumerable fragments of glass have been found. In the water along the shore even larger pieces have been picked up, but these have lost the aquamarine color characteristic of all Dunmore glass. The firebrick which Mr. Crane recovered about six years ago is made of a grayish-white material capable of withstanding intense heat. On the parts exposed to the interior of the kiln, the brick is coated with blue green, and blue glass. The color of the finished products may have been due to some chemical property of the sand used or to chemicals peculiar to the Dunmore process of manufacture. There are no records in existence to settle the question.

The close of the war with Great Britain brought with it a sharp reduction in glass prices and made it impossible for Mr. Jones to continue the manufacture with profit. The business closed in 1815, and the buildings, useful for nothing else but the manufacture of glass, lay idle until 1832 when George Chipman with one or two others reestablished the industry. It thrived for ten years. Then foreign competition compelled them to give up the enterprise. The property was later used for a summer hotel.

It is reasonable to assume that the early workers in this Salisbury factory came from the well-known factories in Sandwich, Massachusetts, since all other glass firms of the time were situated further south and employed workers of no greater skill than those at Sandwich. The first products of the Lake Dunmore kiln were imperfect in regard to symmetry, outline, and composition, but they found a ready market. The examples of glass from the second period of its operation, however, show evidences of the work of master-craftsmen in the improvement of balance, pattern, and design. The ware extant today consists in great part of bottles, water jugs, pitchers and candlesticks. The retort, distilling-jar, and bottles owned by Professor Voter were made before 1815.

It was the peculiar aquamarine color of the glass which finally spelled doom of this particular industry since the clear color of the glass imported from Europe, which was less expensive in the first place, was much more pleasing to the housewives, and most of their Dunmore glassware was discarded.

Shreds and Patches

—by L. Judson Morhouse

Middlebury defeats Williams, Tufts defeats Middlebury, and Williams defeats Tufts. It all seems like a dance by Shawn to us. Now everything is even up again, and what was the use of playing those games anyway.

Along with the first snow of the year what should whirl into our dreary existence but an anonymous letter. Imagine! We were some thrilled at first 'cause we thought it was fan mail, but we soon got that idea out of our head. 'Course, we all make mistakes, but—from one "mere student" to another, don't you think letter writers should sign their names? Come up an' see muh sometime.

Then there's the story of the Chinaman of the Ming Toy dynasty who tried to commit suicide by jumping off a bridge. He was very successful. In fact he was so successful that he killed himself by landing headfirst in four feet of mud. Didn't he dynasty?

Incidentally, we hear the football rules are to be changed next year concerning tackling. Players will not be allowed to tackle those players below the knees who are tacklish below the knees. Well, you would read this column.

From a geology questionnaire - - - "How would you prove that Chipman hill is a kame? Why not call it a drumlin or an esker," Call it whatever you want to. We have a name for it, along with the rest of the Greeks.

We've had more than the usual number of requests this week to mention something about the smooth rhythm, the sweet harmony, and the perfect time of our own college orchestra, but we're not going to. They squeak for themselves.

Shredded Shreds; . . . the roly poly clowns who played the tackles on the U. V. M. frosh football team . . . getting thrown out of Hillcrest at eleven forty-five in the evening . . . the way Joe mixes peanuts in with the English walnuts he sprinkles on your sundae . . . the summer school who thought those small showers on the bottom floors of north and south Starr were cute . . .

Last year's classis of the "Three Little Pigs" finally reached Midd. Maybe by next year they'll have that picture we've heard so much about, "The Big Parade". We especially liked the pictures of mamma and papa on the wall of the brick house.

The farthest thing from our minds when we wrote about a prof who was kissed by Bulgarian folk dancers was that we might put bad ideas in the heads of other profs. But it seems that's just what we did. The Old Howard is a nice theatre, and lets all help our professors to keep it that way.

Consider the surprise and chagrin of a certain Spanish teacher when upon offering to let a young physics professor try her knitting, he said he preferred tatting, and then made good by actually proving to be a better tatter than she. As the saying goes, "Knit for Tat".

We can understand how a senior wouldn't know where the library might be, but the ignorance of the junior who didn't know which was Starr and which was Painter seems to be the height of something of other.

Let us slip in a bit of advice to those men who say, "Hi, honey" to the first lass who answers the phone. It's liable to be the pet aversion of the girl friend, or the cleaning woman which usually goes over in a very small way.

Our idea of a contest would be a water cup spilling contest for assistant football managers. It could be held between halves, and the first manager to cover his half of the field wins.

How about the super embarrassed boy who had to go down to a dorm on Weybridge street and ask for his suspenders? And he didn't even know who had them. We suppose the footlights go to the head.

A professor who was driving through New York city drew up beside a truck at a stop light. The truck driver happening to get a glimpse of the Vermont license plate, leaned out of the window, looked the car from back to front and said, "Where'd you leave the load of hay?" To which the retort proper is, of course, "Oh, I recognize you - - you're the one who voted for LaGuardia at the last mayorality."

In the name of humanity, we're still gunning for that phantom freshman who plays the piano in Hepburn from morn to morn, whose favorite orgy is accompanying the chapel chimes, and who really reminds one of Rubinoff.

COMMUNICATION

To the editor of the CAMPUS:

Although the spirit and interest shown in the editorial of last week's CAMPUS is appreciated other conclusions can be reached. I feel that the writer had failed to take into account several fundamental phases of the club's work.

In the first place it is granted that the D.O.C. has sixty student built cabins in the White Mountains, but these are used for the major part entirely by ski parties. Therefore, an interest in skiing must be created in Middlebury in order to create a need for additional cabins. How could this "ski interest" be created better than with a ski-jump on Chipman and a winter carnival?

Secondly, the mountain club now has available for its use five over-nite shelters within three miles of each other on Bradloaf mountain. Except for Pleiad Lodge, these all need improvement. Five cabins are an adequate number for Bread Loaf range and instead of building more I believe the mountain club should complete those unfinished. The cost of such work is very slight with student volunteer labor (the total complete cost of Pleiad Lodge was about twenty-five dollars). So the work and completion of these lodges would in no way interfere with the burden of the ski-jump that the club has recently undertaken.

Duty Of Christians Is Vespers Subject

Relation of Church to Body Of Christ is Discussed by Dr. John Baillie of Union

Dr. John Baillie, of Union theological seminary, speaking at vespers Sunday, chose his text from I Corinthians xii: 27, "Ye are the body of Christ and the members in particular."

"Soon it will be two thousand years since Christ died," Dr. Baillie stated. "Can we modern westerners hope to get back to the real Jesus? Can we, in any measure, hope to share with those who knew Him in the flesh? If we take the gospel of Christ seriously, the thought may come to us that perhaps we have been a little too glib in accepting the fact that 'the passing of the Master made no difference at all in the prospects of Christianity'. There is no use in pretending a spirit can be effective without a body to aid it."

The speaker went on to prove that if the vast evangelistic program of the church is to continue, Christ must have a body to aid Him in His work. If we are to be His body, we should regard it as our sacred task and duty. The church is You, without you the work of Christianity cannot be accomplished."

"No single one of us can act alone, as we are all members in particular. In fulfilling different functions, we must work together in the same common spirit. By combining harmoniously, we make up the common body of Christ."

The speaker next mentioned several functions which we may perform in this great task. He said that we may be Christ's feet, doing errands of service for other people, His hands, touching and healing; His mouth, speaking words of cheer and joy; Christ's eyes, seeing the needs for service; His ears, quick to hear the call of humanity.

"Thus the whole body of Christ can be joined together, in this college. Let us then offer all we have to Christ to carry out His work."

Advanced Spanish Students Will Meet Sunday for Informal Discussion Group

A group of advanced students in Spanish will meet Sunday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Prof. and Mrs. Juan A. Centeno.

This is to be a division of the Spanish club for those especially interested in the language and will meet for informal discussions. Definite plans for the group will be made at the meeting Sunday.

The Tulane glee club staged an informal football game in Guatemala on a tour and now the natives, who have gone "griddy" have hired Bill Penny of Tulane to coach a team there.

DRAMA REVIEW

The College Dramatic Club tried an interesting experiment last week. It entrusted to a group of admittedly inexperienced young actors no less subtle and difficult a play than Shaw's "Arms and the Man". The result was a creditable performance, though not that brilliant success which we have come to expect Dramatic Club plays to be. The restraining hand of the skillful director was manifest throughout in the steady refusal to misinterpret meanings or farce situations. Whenever the task of interpretation was above the actor's present powers, for indications and promise for the future were not lacking, the actor seemed to stand aside modestly and let Shaw's marvelous lines speak for themselves, and no dramatists' lines are better capable of so doing.

The minor parts of the play seemed to be more fittingly cast than did the major ones. That immortal group of Raina, the romantic heroine; Sergius, the pseudo-heroic lover, and Bluntschli, the cynical, matter-of-fact realist, came off rather badly. Miss Hiller would be irrestible in a play like "Smilin' Thru", but her sweet artlessness hardly qualifies her to impersonate the romantic fool that Shaw imagined. Mr. Hutton's athletic build and facial repose failed to accord with the conception of a foppish, self-satisfied prig like Sergius, nor did he bring out with sufficient emphasis the change from the man he had previously thought himself to the man he later found himself to be.

The first act was sluggish and colorless in performance, though Shaw never wrote a scene so full of action and surprise. The performers seemed to be trying to find themselves, and there was an atmosphere of uncertainty. With the entrance of Miss Cooke in the second act as the servant girl, Louka, the play took on speed and life. Miss Cooke's performance was thoroughly delightful. She is a comedian of no mean ability. Mr. Deedman's stolidity formed an excellent background to her liveliness. It was in this act that Miss Flint, whose work up to this time had been somewhat ineffective, suddenly got into her part and gave the audience a bit of excellent acting. Mr. Munford's Bluntschli, also, got better toward the end, and his apparent lack of a sense of humor, a lack that was partly responsible for the deadness of the first act, gave way to a roguish appreciation of the situation that helped the play greatly.

Frosh Eleven Ties U. V. M. Yearlings

Panther Cubs Show Ability In Stopping Heavier Team But Lack Scoring Punch

The Middlebury freshman football team battled the heavier U. V. M. yearlings to a scoreless deadlock Friday afternoon at Porter field. Although the Panthers threatened twice within the visitors' one yard line, they were unable to penetrate Vermont's massive forward wall.

A punting duel between Phinney of Middlebury and Haug of Vermont featured a slow first period. Both elevens were evenly matched defensively and the play see-sawed in midfield. A twenty-two yard pass from Phinney to Ward was the sole spectacular play of the quarter.

In the second period, Clonan recovered a Vermont fumble on the 20 yard line to place Middlebury in a scoring position for the first time. With the Panther offensive clicking, Spinney slashed off tackle for ten yards and a first down. A penalty moved the oval back to the 25 yard stripe but Fitzgerald recovered twelve on a spinner. Spinney got loose on another spinner through tackle and romped to the three yard marker. Two bucks failed to crash Vermont's stonewall defense at the one yard line, and the visitors booted to safety.

The Blue and White launched a final drive from the 45 yard stripe in a fourth period rally which culminated at the one yard line. Spinney ripped off fifteen yards around right end and Fitzgerald slashed off tackle for ten more. A series of spinners and reverses with Ward, Fitzgerald, and Spinney alternating, advanced the pigskin to the three yard marker, but a buck on the fourth down failed to penetrate the Catamount wall, and the Vermonters punted out of danger.

Coach Nelson's aggregation showed ability in every department of the game and had little difficulty in stopping the heavier upstate eleven's attack. The lack of a necessary scoring punch at the goal line proved Middlebury's chief weakness. Hoffmann, Spinney, Ward, and Fitzgerald were the bulwarks of the Panther lineup.

moved to the Middlebury 10 yard line, but a fumble by Meisel was recovered by Evans, and danger of a score was averted temporarily. Again, in the second period, St. Anselm's worked its way to the home four yard stripe, but there the Panthers tightened their defense, and finally captured the ball on downs after Lee was tackled for a seven yard loss by Captain Riccio on an attempted sweep. The lone highlight of the Middlebury offense in the first half was an electrifying run by Boehm soon after Evans had recovered the fumble by Meisel. The shifty Panther back broke through tackle on the Middlebury 24 and fought his way to the 45 before he was downed after a net gain of 21 yards. For the rest, the Blue and White was so busy on the defensive that their offense was nil.

The Panthers came out in the second half, however, with intent to turn the tide of the game, and succeeded. Zawistoski received the kickoff on his 20 and wheeled about, tossing a lateral to Boehm, who ran to the Middlebury 40. Three consecutive first downs which brought the ball to the St. Anselm's 38 gave notice that Middlebury had begun to click. Two fine passes by Williams, one to Boehm and the other to Golembeske, were the highlights of this advance. The visitors took the ball on downs on their own 38, but they soon lost it when their passing attack failed to function as it had in the first half. The Panthers gained a bit, but the period passed without a score on either side when a Middlebury drive to the sixteen yard line was ended by an incomplete pass into the St. Anselm's end zone.

The last quarter brought about the Blue and White touchdown that won the game. After being held again deep in the visitors' territory, this time on the eight yard line, the Blue and White inaugurated a march from their 32 yard mark, and then proceeded to a score. After an incomplete pass, Boehm gained eight on a reverse. Zawistcski picked up a yard on a buck, and Boehm made it first down through guard. On two tries Boehm brought the pigskin to the 16, and a pass from Williams to Boehm went to the seven. Williams then gained a yard, and Zawistoski banged the line for what was almost a touchdown, the ball coming to rest about a foot from the goal line. Again Zawistoski tried the center, but was stopped. Williams then tucked the oval under his arm and ripped through right tackle for the score. The extra point was tallied on a pass from Williams to Golembeske.

Soon after the kickoff, St. Anselm's replaced its team with an entirely new lineup, and, taking advantage of a pass that was intercepted on the Middlebury 31 by Williams but ruled complete because of interference, almost scored. A fine pass by Connerton placed the visitors on the home three yard stripe, but before anything happened, the game was over. A heated argument by the disappointed losers, who claimed to have been misinformed by the officials as to the time left to play, almost resulted in a post-game battle, but trouble was finally avoided.

Harriers Beaten By Fast Williams Team

Gregory, Williams, Outruns Capt. Sears of Middlebury In Narrow 26-29 Reverse

Appearing on the home course for the first time this season, the Middlebury cross country team lost a closely-contested meet to the Williams college harriers last Saturday by the score of 26-29. Gregory of the Purple captured individual honors by a narrow margin from Captain Sears of the Blue and White, winning in 25 minutes and 24 seconds, creditable time for the trying four and a half mile layout.

The encouraging feature of the defeat, from the Middlebury standpoint, was the good showing of sophomore Meacham, who finished a good fourth, being the second Blue and White runner to cross the line. Gurnett, another sophomore, also did well in finishing as the fifth Middlebury man, but was not counted in the score because of the fact that he was not designated before the race as being one of the regular team.

The order of the finish: Gregory, W, first; Sears, M, second; Crowfoot, W, third; Meacham, M, fourth; Seymour, M, fifth; Goodbody, W, sixth; Ninde, W, seventh; Gross,M, eighth; McVeigh, W, ninth; White, M, tenth.

successful. Coach Carr's pupils presented a stonewall defense, with Earl Peavy, plunging fullback, especially distinguishing himself. In the St. Lawrence contest which was dropped 6-0, the sturdy defense was again effective, holding for three downs on the one foot line. Captain Gustavis, all-state running guard, was the mainstay in this department. The present edition of Mikemen count on their fast running plays, a bewildering variety of reverses and spinners, and a strong aerial attack to take Middlebury. The talented Bozek will undoubtedly bear the brunt of the St. Michael's ball-carrying.

The Blue and White warriors emerged victorious from Saturday's encounter with St. Anselm's in good physical shape, with no serious injuries reported, and will be able to put their full strength on the field, with the possible exception of MacLean, regular tackle who was injured in the Tufts battle.

To date the Panthers have won four games and lost but one, and a large crowd of their supporters are expected to trek to Burlington in anticipation of viewing the team gain their first step toward retaining the conference title.

The probable lineups:

St. Michael's: Gardner, Stankevich or Branon, ends; Kennedy, Hahnle or Phillips, tackles; Gustavis, Billings or Powers, guards; Grogan, center; Lavin, quarterback; Bozek, Gorge or Donahue, halfbacks; Peavy, fullback.

Middlebury: Reid and Evans or Clonan, ends; Riccio and MacLean or Stafford, tackles; Hoxie and Jocelyn, guards; Shafiroff, center; Williams, quarterback; Boehm and Golembeske, halfbacks; Zawistoski, fullback.

Panther Runners To Oppose R.P.I.

Blue and White Harriers to Bid for First Victory on Home Course Saturday

The Blue and White harriers are slated to meet R. P. I. Saturday on the home course.. Last year the Midd runners scored a 23-32 victory over the Engineers at Troy.

As Middlebury has suffered two defeats out of two starts this season, it would seem that Middlebury will have a tough fight Saturday to duplicate last year's showing. The R. P. I. boys, in their first meet of the season, defeated C. C. N. Y. 20-35. Chuck Bradley of R. P. I., only one minute behind the winner from C. C. N. Y. was closely followed by six of his team mates.

Middlebury will be represented by Sears, White, Seymour, Meacham, Norton, Gurnett and Tilford.

Green and Gold Eleven to Encounter Norwich Cadets at Northfield Saturday

While the Middlebury Panthers will be battling the St. Michael's eleven at Burlington, the Green and Gold of Vermont will invade Northfield to encounter the Norwich cadets in a Conference game.

U. V. M., fresh from its surprise victory over the strong New Hampshire aggregation last week, will have a decided advantage in the matter of weight, and is favored to take the soldier boys quite handily. Norwich has shown a lack of scoring punch all season, but its defense will offer considerable trouble for the Catamount offensive to overcome.

Every male senior at the University of California must undergo two weeks of football training; one week in the line and one in the backfield.

Tuxedoes are the latest style for track officials at Allegheny college. This custom was established last spring.

Frosh Eleven Will Play At Montpelier

Undefeated Yearling Team To Conclude Season With Seminary Game Saturday

Coach Nelson's freshman football team will endeavor to keep its 1933 record free from the stain of defeat when it meets the strong Montpelier seminary eleven at Montpelier Saturday. The contest will be the season's finale for the yearlings, who have yet to be beaten, although they have been held to scoreless deadlocks by the Union college and the U. V. M. first year elevens.

In the boys from the capital city the frosh will meet a strong, undefeated foe. Montpelier has scored victories over G. M. J. C., 12-0, Vermont Academy, 41-0, and has tied the powerful Clark school aggregation, 6-6. The sole direct comparison between the teams can be drawn from their respective showings against the Green Mountain Junior College, which bowed to the Panther cubs by 12-7. This would theoretically give the boys from upstate a slight advantage since they had a two touchdown edge over the Juniors.

Middlebury will probably present the same lineup that outplayed the Green and Gold of Vermont last week in the tie game that should have been a Panther victory. The ends will be Craig and Clonan; the tackles, Hoffmann and Seaman; the guards, Warren and Akley; the center, Chase, and the backs, Phinney, Spinney, Fitzgerald, and Phillipson. There is a possibility that Bernardini, end, and Ward, halfback, may break into the starting group, and they are certain to see plenty of action in any case. Montpelier will line up with Ritchie and Watson, ends; Elmer and Warren, tackles; Flaherty and Granger, guards; Davis, center; Baxter, Higgins, Camolli, and Lynch, backs.

SPE to Encounter KDR In Touch Football Finals

Sigma Phi Epsilon will play Kappa Delta Rho in the finals of the intramural touch football tournament this afternoon. Both teams have shown some fast playing and the fight for first place should be a hard one.

Sig Ep's victory over Chi Psi on Monday entered them in the final round of the tourney. The game was close, with a little loose playing by Chi Psi deciding the issue. Chi Psi scored a touchdown immediately after the opening whistle. SPE rallied under the leadership of Dorgan and soon overcame this lead, winning by an 18-12 score. The KDR team reached the finals by defeating Delta Upsilon in the other semi-final by 20-12.

The playoff to determine third and fourth places was held yesterday between DU and Chi Psi. DU led all through the game. In the last play of the last quarter Ziegler passed to La Bounty who tallied to tie the score at 12-12. Each team was given five overtime plays for a chance to score, but neither succeeded. The second playoff between the same teams will take place tomorrow afternoon.

Women's Field Hockey Team to Meet Men Pucksters in Classic Game Today

Hockey clubs and male shins will clash this afternoon in the annual epic encounter between picked teams from each of the colleges at Middlebury, when the women's all-Midd pucksters will take on a team mustered from representatives of the south side of the campus.

The game is scheduled for 3:30, on the greensward west of the Chateau. Dorothy McK. Wilson '34, captain of the women's club, will match her forces against a team led by Richard B. Sweet '34.

Mrs. Richard A. Paul has been entrusted with the referee's whistle. The battle will be followed by the annual field hockey bonfire and picnic supper.

The members of the All-Midd hockey team who will be awarded their letters this afternoon are as follows: Jean E. Barton '35, goal; Dorothy McK. Wilson '34, rfb.; Doris P. Tucker '35, lfb.; Jean M. Edgerton '36, chb.; Constance W. Gooch '37, lhb.; Priscilla S. Bowerman '34, rhb.; Ruth G. McNulty '36, c.; Margaret T. Smith '34, li.; Carol E. Wheeler '36, lw.; Helen L. Entertainment Program to Be Offered at Inn Monday

A program of musical selections will be presented at the Middlebury inn Monday evening, November 6, under the auspices of the college entertainment course committee, according to Jesse M. Deutsch '34, student manager.

An announcement to this effect was made in chapel this morning by Prof. Raymond L. Barney. At that time it was stated that the program will be open to all students and faculty members interested in the current projects of the entertainment course, and in music in general.

No admission will be charged and all are welcome to attend. Tickets will be furnished upon application at the college bookstore before the evening of the concert.

And as a last point, the plans of the founders of the club might be explained. They drew blueprints, which are now on file in Professor Voter's office, for a large lodge over Ripton gorge about six and a half miles from the campus. This lodge was planned to be very complete with a large lounging room fireplace across one end, a built on kitchen, and two wings for separate men's and women's sleeping quarters. This project would cost from six hundred to a thousand dollars and would tend to resemble a mountain country club rather than a rough shelter. There is a need for such a lodge. The club would not have built such a project this year but can stand the expense of the ski-jump. The winter carnival committee considers its present plans a step toward financing such a lodge rather than a step away from the wishes of the founders.

The interest and the spirit that the editor expressed in his article is appreciated and I hope that I have pointed out conclusively the basic need of a ski-jump before other projects of the mountain club can be worked on.
